$ - indicates merit scholarship

The college counselor rates institutions as Likely / Probable / Long-shot to estimate a student's chances of admission (based on grades, test scores, etc.).

- 22 admission offers / 22 applications submitted rated "Likely" (high odds of admission)
- 26 admission offers (7 wait list) / 41 applications submitted rated "Probable" (medium odds of admission)
- 10 admission offers (5 wait list) / 59 applications submitted rated "Long-shot" (low odds of admission)

HIS did well relative to the overall pool of high school students applying to university. I have broken down our application numbers by institution. The data either comes from official published results by the institution itself or through private conversations with admission officers at the institution.
